

Celtic Communion 6.30pm Sunday 11 March

As part of a developing programme looking at new forms of Sunday evening worship, St Bartholomew's offers you the opportunity to experience a Celtic Communion service. This quiet, reflective service from the Iona community uses fresh, vibrant language and has a very open, contemporary feel as well as tuning in to some of aspects of the Celtic tradition. The service begins with words of gathering, and moves gradually to an invitation to all to come to God's table. If you think that all communion services are the same, try this!
